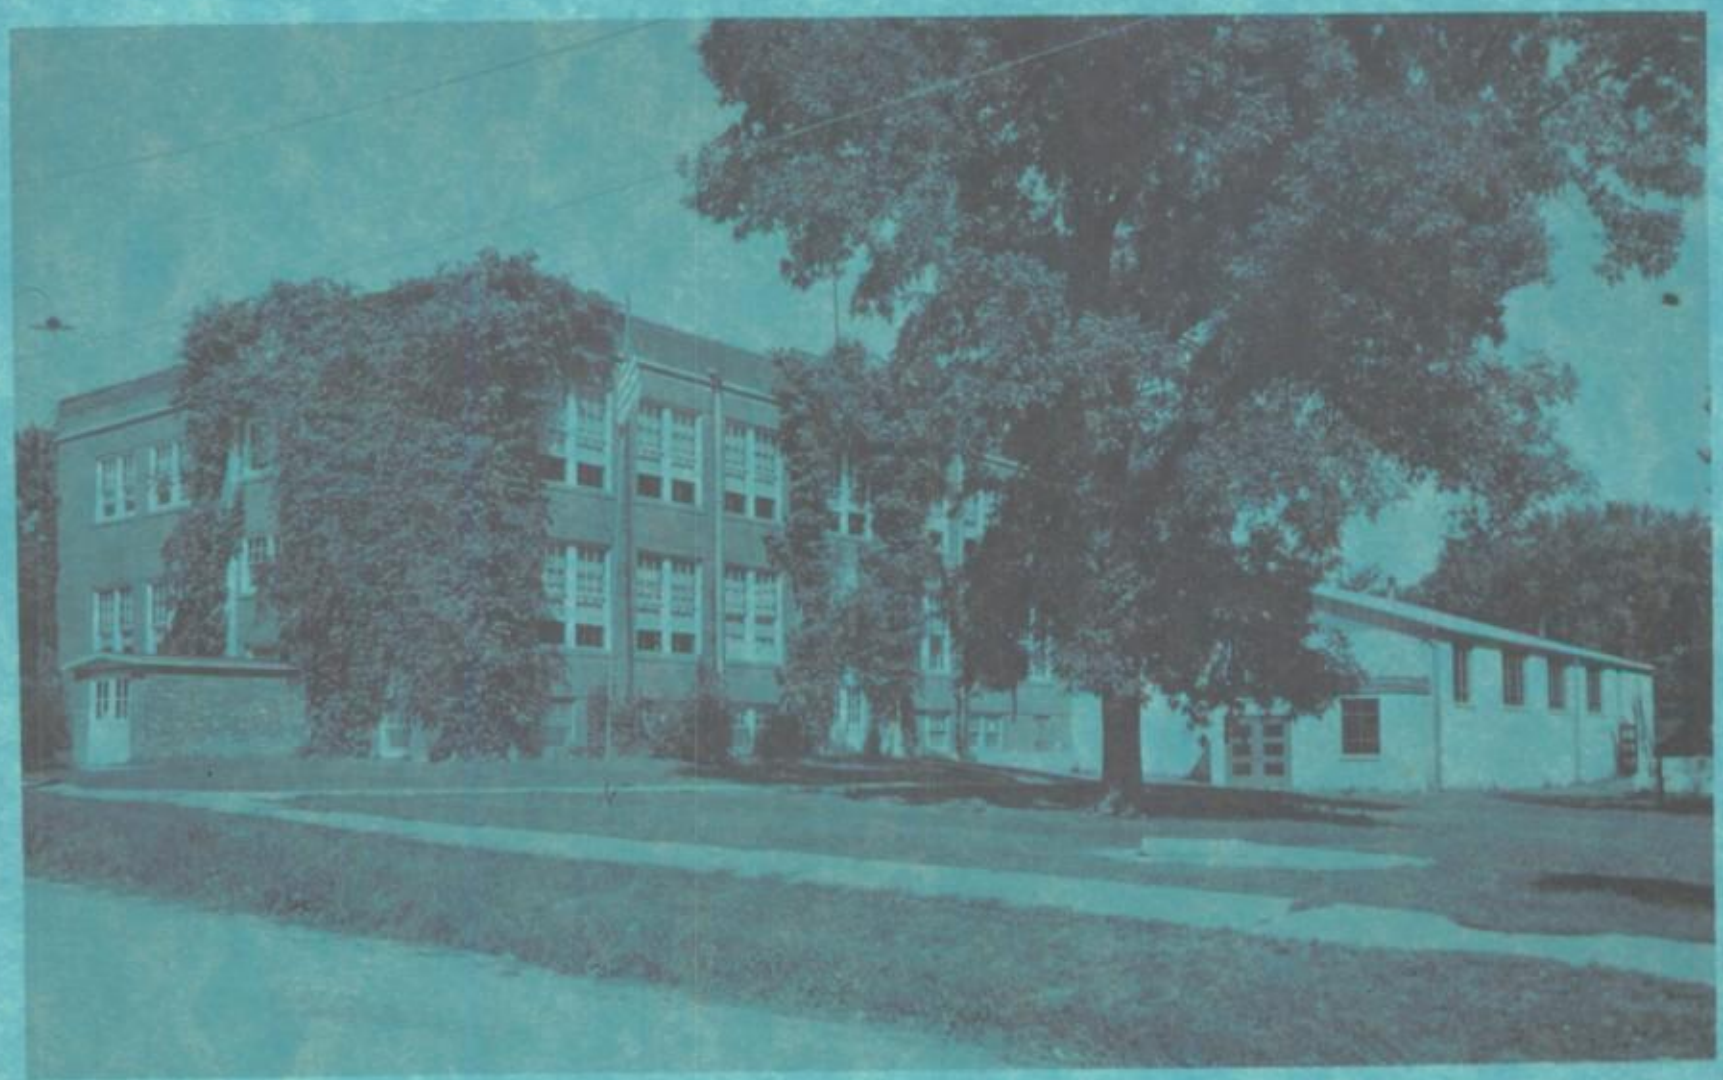
CAINSVILLE R-1 SCHOOLS

Cainsville, Mo. 64632
1872-1972



Cainsville R-I is classified as K-6-6-A, has an enrollment of 199 students, and a valuation of $2,159,431. The tax levy is $4.05 and the Current Bonded Indebtedness is $6,000. In two years the debt on the gymnasium will be paid.

Twenty-six units of study are offered to the High School students. Both Secondary and Elementary librarians are on duty; remedial reading and remedial math are offered to special children. All teachers are degree teachers--the majority hold at least one year's work in excess of a degree.

The first brick building was erected in 1889 and additions were made to fill the community needs.

Building before the December 8, 1919, fire destroyed 30 years of records, work, and pride.

In 1920 the foundation for the present school house was begun. This, too, has had many improvements: the Ag. Shop 1942, the Gymnasium in 1955, and the vestibule in 1956.

The TOMAHAWK staff wishes to thank the many people who have helped us to gain the historical knowledge of the Cainsville School. We hope that we have attained great accuracy, and that you can appreciate the information obtained.

A HISTORY OF THE CAINSVILLE SCHOOL

In our search for facts about the Cainsville School, we have found that a school building was first established about two blocks north of the present site. When the state began to push for better schools, Cainsville and its progressive community decided to cooperate and build a more adequate school building. This event was one-hundred years ago.

In the year of 1872 a two-story frame building was erected on the ground where the present school building now stands. This building had two rooms and two teachers; an enclosed stairway led to the upstairs where the students who passed the fourth reader were challenged to higher learning. The framework of this first building was moved to the southeast part of town (known as the Glines property) and has since been used as a barn.

In 1889, a brick building containing four rooms, a large belfry, and a corner door replaced the frame building. Graduates of 1890 gained the distinction of being Cainsville's first graduating class. Soon these existing halls became too small, and four more rooms were added. The first class to complete 12 years of education graduated in 1910. New rooms added to the rear of this building in 1916 were designated the High School.

Always a part of any school are the rest rooms. These were two buildings on the most easternly part of the schoolground, near the then existing railroad tracks. The janitor pumped drinking water from the well into cups held by students. A watering trough was kept filled for horses--the mode of transportation.

On December 8, 1920, fire destroyed the beloved school building. The different departments of the school had to be quartered in various rooms about town. Telephones were used as a signal for class changes.

Immediately a new building was begun. On February 15, 1921, there was a formal dedication. A most interesting program was carried out throughout the day and closed with a night session.

This building was a handsome and commodious structure, well-apportioned and arranged for the uses of the different departments of the school, and, when fully equipped, it was one of the best small school plants in the country. Many credits were offered to the students--but the school did not have a gymnasium. Three hired men and volunteer student labor dug a basement under the north half of the building. This basement had a dirt floor, sloping sides where spectators spread their papers and quilts to sit upon as they observed the basketball games. Eventually concrete was poured to make seats along the south side and a maple floor was laid for a basketball court.

Vocational Agriculture was established in 1938 and a separate building for these classes was built in 1942.

Thirteen rural schools became a part of the Reorganization in 1951. These districts were: Akron, Banner, Cain, Crouse, Glaze, Hagan, Keller, Lynn, Moore, Phoenix, Snowball, Surprise, and Victor.

In 1955, the new gymnasium was attached to the present building. The old gymnasium became a Home Ec room, Custodians room, and a furnace room. The old furnace room became a lunch room. The auditorium was no longer needed so this was converted into three classrooms--the stage became a library. An entry was added to the front of the building to take care of the muddy boots and snow-packed clothes. Carpeted halls and stairs, flourescent lighting, electric machines, city water, and many modern devices have been added to keep pace with Time. Four large buses transport students many miles a day.

Yes, the building has changed. The Course of Study has changed. But a statement from the "Rules and Regulations and Course of Study of 1910-1911" may well be used today.

"We point with pride to the fact that many of the graduates of former years from our school are among the leaders in all those activities which make this a good community in which to live."
